

CASE STUDY: HOSPITAL MOVE

In 2013, Taranaki Relocations successfully secured what's possibly the largest tendered move in the region!

Back in August 2013, our team shifted furniture and equipment from the now-demolished Stainton Building to the new Acute Services Building, as part of the Project Maunga Taranaki Base Hospital Redevelopment.

As part of the redevelopment, Taranaki Relocations moved five inpatient wards, the entire operating suite, the sterile services department, the endoscopy unit and day ward.

Carefully managed and well planned, this very time-sensitive move required tasks be completed to a specified timetable to ensure staff and patient safety.

The migration to the new building was completed promptly and within budget.

A testimonial from our customer:

"The move went off without a hitch from every perspective! Thanks again for the slick manner in which you handled the migration process. It went very, very smoothly and you guys played a significant part in that process."
